ABOUT THE CONFERENCE

The International Association for the Study of Common Property, the Programme committee, and the local organising committee welcome you hereby to the fifth international conference of the Association.

For the first time the Association has located its conference in Europe. The Nordic countries feel honoured to be chosen as hosts for the conference. The venue of the conference is located in Bodø in Nordland County in Norway.

The Programme committee has chosen the theme "Reinventing the Commons".

Commons have existed throughout all recorded history as an integral part of the resource management of local communities. With the emergence of the modern state and the capitalist economies, the commons of local communities around the world found themselves in a losing battle with advocates of state ownership or individual ownership. The traditional knowledge embodied in the well established institutional frameworks was not cast in a form understandable to the bureaucrats of the state even in the cases where they might be willing to consider them on their merits. And often they were not cast in a form which made them adaptable to a changing environment. The "reinvention" of the commons is the academic exploration and search for deeper understanding of how and why institutions of common ownership can manage resources in an equitable and sustainable way in a changing environment and benefit the local communities depending on them for their survival. This "reinvention" is now well along within the research community. It may still take a generation of teaching to disseminate the "invention" to the bureaucrats in most need of the knowledge. Meanwhile our Association will continue to explore the frontiers of understanding of property rights to educate those who are to teach the next generation of bureaucrats.

Thus the papers presented by the participants are the main Programme. The Programme as presented here consists of 234 paper presentations in 60 sessions, 4 special sessions and 8 keynote addresses. This is about the limit of what we can handle in two and a half days.

At the moment of writing there are registered 348 participants from 47 different countries. From eastern Europe 8 and from developing countries 45 scholars have been awarded grants to enable them to participate in the conference. We trust that all participants will have an exciting conference.

A good meeting to you all of you.

THE INDIGENOUS PEOPLES OF THE WORLD AND THE RIGHT TO OUR COMMON FUTURE

The indigenous peoples of the world have lost most of their means of subsistence - their land. For a long time it has been accepted as a regrettable but inevitable consequence of modernity that their outdated ways of life had to pass away.

In reality it has never been possible to defend this point of view on moral grounds. But now it is possible to see this ever more clearly. It is hardly a coincidence that the cultural diversity which the indigenous peoples represent, geographically tend to coincide with biological diversity. The cause of the indigenous peoples, is our common cause.

Will the indigenous peoples keep anything of what they still possess? Is there any hope for the future for any of us?

These questions will be discussed with reference to examples from the Arctic and other regions of the world, and also with reference to an evaluation of the development of law both nationally and internationally.

THE INDIGENOUS PEOPLES OF THE WORLD AND THE RIGHT TO OUR COMMON FUTURE

The indigenous peoples of the world have lost most of their means of subsistence. Their land for a long time it has been accepted as a respectable but inevitable consequence of modernity that their outdated ways of life had to pass away.

In reality it has never been possible to defend the point of view on moral grounds. But now it is possible to see the ever more obvious. It is hardly a coincidence that the cultural diversity which the indigenous peoples represent geographically lead to coincide with biological diversity. The cause of the indigenous peoples is our common cause.

Will the indigenous peoples keep anything of what they still possess? Is there any hope for the future for any of us?

These questions will be discussed with reference to examples from the Arctic and other regions of the world, and also with reference to an evaluation of the development of the both nationally and internationally.
